The course was from off Larchmont to Long Neck Point on the Connecticut shore, then across the Sound to Oak Neck near to Oyster Bay, and then again across the Sound to the finish. They started with the wind aft and ran with spinnakers for 1314 miles. Then They started with the wind aft and ran with spinnakers for 13¹4 miles. Then it was windward work and on this point the Vanitie showed her superiority. In a beat of 7³4 miles she gained about a minute. The last leg was west half north. The wind by the time they started on this leg headed both yachts so that they had to make three tacks to cross the Sound, and it freshened considerably. the Sound, and it freshened considerably.

The harder it blew the better the Vanitie seemed to like it and she finished a little more than half a mile ahead of Man, Commander F. L. Sawyer and Alex. Smith Cochrane. The Vanitie is in much better trim than she was at any time last season. Much of her top-hamper had been lightened, which told under yesterday's conditions. Her sails have been recut and fitted well and she has the winches that were used on the cup defender Reliance, which enable the w to handle the sails smartly. Capt.
